THE SDG'S

On 25 September 2015, at the United Nations Headquarters in New York, 193 world leaders committed to the 17 Sustainable Development Goals (or Global Goals). These are a series of ambitious objectives and targets to end extreme poverty and hunger, fight inequality and injustice, and tackle climate change, by 2030. Achievement of the SDGs is one of the UN's highest priorities. As such, the UNAA is deeply committed to the education, inspiration and engagement of Australians around the SDGs and has a clear mandate to increase the Australian support needed to help create a safer, fairer and more sustainable world.

The Sustainable Development Goals are the blueprint to achieve a better and more sustainable future for all. They address the global challenges we face, including poverty, inequality, climate change, environmental degradation, peace and justice. Learn more and take action.

As the Civil Society promoting the UN, our organization is membership based working with The Sustainable Development Goals which are a call for action by all countries – poor, rich and middle-income – to promote prosperity while protecting the planet. We recognise that ending poverty must go hand-in-hand with strategies that build economic growth and address a range of social needs including education, health, social protection, and job opportunities, while tackling climate change and environmental protection.

I note with thanks the work of the advisors, sponsors, donors, members and volunteers without whom our association would not be able to hold the wide variety of events it holds each year supporting the UN goals and the local community.

We thank our Patron the Hon Frances Adamson AO for her wonderful support and encouragement and in particular for the exceptional Reception to thank our members, friends and sponsors, a highlight for those who attended.

A special thanks to members of the Food Industry for their ongoing support with fundraising and their contribution to Food Sustainable practices.

Our UNAASA Committee has contributed with time and effort to ensure our programs are delivered with impact offering a diverse number of projects and events attended by our community.

As an organisation we are particularly proud of our collaboration with UN Youth SA, who are an amazing group of committed 18-25 year olds destined to be future leaders.

Their work in School Education and the wider community is exemplary.

Our engagement and partnerships with the Multicultural Community enrich our experiences and widen our outreach

In Friendship,

Lidia Moretti

SEEDS FOR SNAPPER EVENT

UNAASA in collaboration with OZ Fish conducted a discovery and learning event designed to convey the learnings and expected outcomes of this year's Seeds for Snapper project.

Ecosystems support all life on Earth and the Seeds for Snapper project is linked to the promotion of the UN's Sustainability Development Goals.

The UN Decade on Ecosystem Restoration is a rallying call for the protection and renewal of ecosystems all around the world, for the benefit of people and nature.

It can help end poverty, combat climate change and prevent mass extinction of our local species... in this instance the Snapper found in SA waters.

Thanks to everyone who attended and all who helped make this event a success.

IWD BREAKFAST

United Nations Association of Australia SA Division attended the International Women's Day Breakfast - Adelaide Convention Centre. (Jing Lee) Mothers, grandmothers and teachers were top of the list of inspiring women in the lives of those celebrating International Women's Day in Adelaide. At the Adelaide Convention Centre, roving reporter, Bobby Macumber spoke to women as they arrived for a breakfast emceed by ABC Radio Adelaide breakfast presenter, Sonya Feldhoff. Adelaide's International Women's Day breakfast had a record 3,076 people attending in person this year, including students from 33 schools.

Women's economic empowerment is central to a gender equal world. When women are given equal opportunities to earn, learn and lead – entire communities thrive. The theme for International Women's Day 2024 is Count Her In: Invest in Women. Accelerate Progress. Based on the priority theme for the United Nations 68th Commission on the Status of Women, Count Her In will examine the pathways to greater economic inclusion for women and girls everywhere.

While important progress has been made, women face significant obstacles to achieving equal participation in the economy. The event keeps growing because of a wonderful team of volunteers, and the contributions from terrific guest speakers, including Annabel Crabb this year.

It grows because we share a great hunger to celebrate the success of women, honour those women who have shown us the way, and to acknowledge the struggles women face that must still be overcome.

CELEBRATING INTERNATIONAL HARMONY DAY

This year, Harmony Day was celebrated by many on the steps of St Peter's Cathedral.

Members of the public, multicultural groups, archbishops and priests dressed in religious and multicultural dress to celebrate harmony in song. Pop Up Choir members erupted into song and dance, performing five contemporary love songs concluding with the release of ten white doves followed by an unprecedented ringing of the church bells.

The message for the day, "If ever in history we needed to come together in harmony via the joy of song & dance, it is now!" This well attended event was a collaboration with UNAA(SA), Lynn Arnold AO, St Peters Cathedral & Andrew Baines.

We welcome the UN Youth Representative to the United Nations in New York, Gavin Cheong to celebrate with us.

CELEBRATION OF WORLD ENVIRONMENT DAY AT URRBRAE HOUSE

To celebrate World Environment Day in 2024, the SA Division of the United Nations Association of Australia hosted an event in historic Urrbrae House, University of Adelaide and invited three people to speak on the UNESCO World Heritage nomination for the Flinders Ranges region. The President, Lidia Moretti, welcomed 50 guests to hear presentations from Professor Andy Lowe, President of the Environment Institute at the University of Adelaide, Associate Professor Diego Garcia-Bellido, University of Adelaide and Senior Researcher at the South Australian Museum and Mary Lou Simpson Chair and Founder of the Flinders Ranges Ediacara Foundation.

Professor Lowe set the geological scene. Australia is one of the oldest continents on Earth and South Australia has some of the most significant geological records.

Associate Professor, Diego Garcia-Bellido explained that UNESCO World Heritage status is the highest level of protection a region can have. He provided an overview of the UNESCO World Heritage Fossil sites and reminded the audience there are 20 World Heritage sites in Australia.

He went on to describe the specific sites in the Flinders Ranges UNESCO World Heritage nomination. An enthralling snapshot into the world of the Ediacarans followed. They represent the oldest complex, multicellular life on our planet. The Ediacaran fossils of the new Nilpena Ediacara National Park are the jewel in the crown for South Australia's World Heritage bid. These fossils occur on five continents but the examples in the new park are the most diverse in world. The research teams come from the South Australian Museum and the University of California, Riverside.

Mary Lou Simpson spoke on the work of the Flinders Ranges Ediacara Foundation which was established in partnership with the government to help conserve the Ediacara fossils and to ensure the knowledge they contain is shared with all. To achieve these aims the Foundation raises funds for several educational and scientific projects.

The Foundation is very proud to be taking a part in the UNESCO World Heritage bid for parts of the Flinders Ranges. The Presentation concluded with the presenters taking questions from the audience.

UN YOUTH REPORT, 2024

UN Youth South Australia has had an outstanding start to 2024, with a busy schedule of programs and activities continuing to expand the breadth and impact of the organisation. Encouragingly, engagement across its events - including State Conference, SA SRC, Art Summit, and its school visits - has grown substantially in this first quarter. The success of these programs is encouraging in the organisation's ongoing ambition to foster youth engagement and global awareness.

The 2024 State Conference, held at the Woodhouse Activity Centre, marked another positive inflection point for UN Youth SA's flagship annual event. The Conference saw Delegate numbers rise year-on-year, bringing together passionate young people from across South Australia to learn about and engage with the theme: "The Future of Your Democracy". Delegates at the Conference had the opportunity to hear from expert speakers, engaging with two speaker panels and a keynote address including the State Head of the Australian Electoral Commission, and respected academics from the Flinders University College of Business Government and Law, and several Faculties of the University of Adelaide. UN Youth SA is also deeply grateful to Her Excellency The Honourable Frances Adamson AC for hosting the delegates of the State Conference at Government House to open the event, and making a special address highlighting Her Excellency's unique insight and experiences into civic life in Australia. We are also grateful to the UNAA SA for supporting the Conference, and the Adelaide Hills Council for providing a grant - allowing the event to be more accessible to students of all backgrounds.

The 2024 SA Listening Tour also set a new standard for youth engagement in South Australia as part of the Australian Youth Representative to the United Nations program, coordinated by UN Youth Australia in collaboration with the Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade. The SA Listening Tour saw the 2024 Youth Representative, Gavin Choong, engage young people in regional Australia, meet with stakeholders across Local Government, industry, and community organisations, and hear unique and valuable perspectives across the State. We thank the Commissioner for Children and Young People for inviting the 2023 and 2024 Australian Youth Representatives to the United Nations to attend and give a keynote address at the "SA SRC Summit" - the headline event of the Commissioner's primary youth engagement platform. UN Youth Australia looks forward to releasing a South Australian sub-report in the coming months to report back to stakeholders engaged in the course of this Listening Tour.

As we continue into 2024, our focus remains on expanding outreach, attracting a diverse array of participants, and enhancing engagement strategies. By cultivating meaningful interactions and offering compelling experiences, we aim to inspire ongoing involvement and cultivate a community eager for more events.

GENEVIEVE THESEIRA-HAESE

Genevieve was born and raised in Singapore to Eurasian parents. Her early years were largely influenced by her parents and her father's library. Inspired by the potential to positively influence people to action through storytelling and imagery, she moved to Los Angeles where she obtained a Bachelor of Arts (with Honours) in Communication.

Genevieve moved to London in 1986 where she lived and worked in the advertising industry for 10 years. In 2000 her father passed away at age 59, so Genevieve moved back to Singapore to be with her family. She was very close to her father and his death led her on a more spiritual journey, a world away from the world of advertising.

Genevieve's passion for helping others saw her join the Board of the Home Nursing Foundation in Singapore and develop a number of holistic healing retreats across Asia.

Genevieve is the founder and owner of the holistic healing arts portal 'BreathingSpace Inc', a healing arts portal designed to promote the healing arts to corporate executives globally.

Genevieve first met Martin Haese in 2000 at a Global Entrepreneur's Organisation event and they were married in Melbourne in January 2010 before moving to Adelaide, South Australia.
